sherry

Sherry has been one of the world's favourite wines since Shakespeare's time. From delicate, sea-breeze evoking Manzanilla and crisp, dry Fino through rich, dry Amontillado and nutty Oloroso to sun-dried, luxurious sweet PX, the choice is incomparable.

cava & champagne

While Cava is made by the traditional method (bottle fermentation), a process it shares with Champagne, there is a major difference in the blend of grapes used. Cava uses mainly Xarel-lo, Parellada and Macabeo grapes. These lend Cava a floral, honeyed bouquet. Champagne uses Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier, a complex, buttery mix which tends to soften and improve with time.

ALBARIÑO

First cultivated by monks who cared for those traveling the pilgrims' route to St James' sanctuary in Compostela, Galicia, this variety is rightly considered among Spain's wine treasures. Some think Albariño is a clone of Riesling, while others insist it is a native. Combining beautiful aroma, freshness in mouth with a joyously long finish it can be drunk alone or turn seafood and shellfish into a feast.
